The Intelligencer.

WHEELING, W. VA., AUGUST 22, 1887.

Commissioners of the District of Columbia The President has had more or less trouble on account of the District of Cofinds a way to get rid of the present officials he is likely to have more Those rulers of the District caused a great scandal by certain street opening manœuvres not entirely uncon nected with the President's purchase of the Red Top property. All that can fairly be said in the President's favor in this regard is that he may not have known that the Commissioners were using him to promote a real estate speculation at public Lately the Commissioners have ap peared in another role. They started to make Washington a model city. If they succeed in this they will lay the whole country under obligation to them for the good example, for up to date there is not in this whole country what may truthfully be called a model city. But the Commissioners are not making a good beginning in this new departure.

The dispatches tell how they arrested three wealthy men for breaking an order issued to keep the streets free of obstructions. They left their carriages in the highway, and the officers, having no instructions to apply the law to certain classes only, took them in. Then the Commissioners took fright, let the wealthy men off, and rescinded the order.

If the carriages of rich men obstruct the streets, that is an objectionable as though the drays of poor men gave like offens Toure ought not to be one law for the rich and another for the poor. That is more offensive to the American sense than th blockading of public highways.

The Proclamation of the National League. It is the common testimony of the informed that for years Ireland has not been so peaceful as now. The record of crime in the United Kingdam shows that there are more breaches of the peace in England and Scotland than in Ireland. Yet no Eggland or Scotland, and no political movement in either is outlawed.

The Tory Government, not content to place itself on the side of all the wrong, all the oppression, all the brutality which have made Ireland a Land of Deepair must needs have the Crimes act, which gave it the power to place under martial law in time of peace the whole of that island. Against the sober judgment of men who have no sympathy with Gladstone and Parnell, it must now go further and put the National League under the ban. This means that the Lergue is outlawed, and every person connected there with is stripped of his civil rights as all all the world has supposed those rights to exist under the British Constitution.

He may be arrested, taken out of Ire land and tried for a crime which was no crime until it was invented by the Tory Government to fit this particular case. It was openly charged when the Crimes Act was proposed that the design was to mad-den the Irish people and drive them out of their present condition of peace into overt acts egaluat the government.

The proclamation of all Ireland, and now of the Lesgue by name, is a severe keep cool heads under a terrible strain. An outbreak would be heralded by the Fory tooters as vindicating the wisdom of their party, though it might in fact be the very result of their policy of nagging and enraging. All these Tory shifts will fail, and Ireland will yet be lifted out of the Slough of Despond; but before the day of deliverance days still darker clouds may roll over that fair land whose history is as sad as anything in the history of civili-

In the view of the political Prohibition ists, every man or woman who does not see just as they see is on the wrong track and "little better than one of the wicked." It is not enough to be a good citizen, a temperance man, or even a total obstainer or even in favor of prohibition. To be worthy to be saved it is necessary to go in for a Third Party, and to spell prohibition with a large P. It is so in West Virginia, it is so elsewhere.

The Beston Transcript, which is not much of a "rum-seller's organ," addresses itself to this festure of the situation in these words:

Why should the Prohibitionists expect

Why should the Prohibitionists expect the Republican party to walk into their parlor? At every opportunity the Prohibition leaders express their hatred of the Republican party, and boast of their agency in defeating it in 1884. Parties are collections of men, after all, and men have a keen sense of past injury and present insult. It is easier, says the old proverb, to catch files with molasses than with vinegar. The Prohibitionists, after proclaiming thet the vinegar is extra sonrthough non-alcobolic—are in in state of perpetual surprise and indignation that the files will not take to it.

The people of the United States by and large prefer license to prohibition. Why should either of the great parties insist on presenting to them as an issue that which they have refused? In Massachnsetts the Republican party's alliance with prohibition resulted finally in the election of a Democratic Governor and a Republican Legislature pledged to enact a license law. Certainly the Republicans have no deeire to repeat that experience, and no one but a prohibitionist can blame them. The Republican party surjence, and no one but a prohibitionist can blame them. The Republican play gave to the people the local option law and with it they are well satisfied. Besides, prohibition is the only question before the people because it is the only question before the people because it is the only question by Republican party walk into the for misdemeanor. The court to-day over-ruled a motion to quash this indictment, and each one of the parties indicted was released on his own recognizance.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES. So far this month 14,000 men have Taylor and Beinis, who arrested A. C. Wade, of Jamestown, and Leroy D. Gale A good deal of new machinery is going into New England mills.

Several barbed wire works in the nave increased their capacity.

The spring and axis manufacturers have formed a national association.

There is a great scarcity of cars for coke, lumber and coal throughout the West.

The city of Detroit has awarded a contract for an iron bridge, to cost $200,000. Workingmen are traveling less from place to place this year than ever before. A number of rolling-mills in the West are idle on account of the rollers' difficulty. There is a very heavy demand for all kinds of railway locomotive and car appli-

British manufacturers are expecting to profit very largely this fall and winter out of the activity in the United States. An English company, called the Moss Bay Company, expects to move its entire works to the United States.

There are 327 blast furnaces in opera-tion in the United States, producing 124, 539 tons per week, and 313 idle, with a weekly capacity of 122,042 tons. The an-thracite capacity has increased from 33, 602 tons weekly a year ago to 35,278 now.

There is a great demand for freight boats on Western lakes and rivers. A Cleveland Company has increased its facilities to enable it to turn out a large freight eteamboat every three months. All of the lake ship and boat yards are doing a good business.

An iron-fence works is to be erected at Platt's Mouth, Neb., and a wire-nail factory is to be erected at Dubuque, Iowe, with a capacity of 100 kegs per day. Another wire and wire-nail factory is to be built at Witchita, Kan., at a coet of $150,000, and a car-works is to be built on seventy-five acres of land; cost, $500,000.

The prosperity of the farming commu-nities in the West is resulting in the build-ing up of a multitude of little industries near the markots. The larger concerns in the leading cities are discovering com-petition from these new sources, and are putting forth special efforts to protect their future trade from the little ones.

Notwithstanding the great increase in hosiery manufacturing, a dozen or more new buildings are projected, on which work will be begun in September. A concern is leaving Schenectady, N. Y., on account of lack of mill room. Cheap land is an important matter to a concern of the second of the second
